

Guest Editor Invitation

As a natural history, each published Journal is edited by editor in chief who is well aware about the journal's aim and scope and content. The editor in chief is well informed about the conceptual, technical and practical issues of the journal's subject. But to improve the quality of our journal and offer a fresh perspective on a variety of hot-button issues, I decided to invite guest editor(s) to manage publishing some of our next issues.

The guest editor will be selected among experts in field of cancer research or journalism, or among young editors interested in these fields.

Those wishing to guest edit the next issue of Iranian Journal of Cancer Prevention should submit a proposal to me by 30th Feb. 2014. The proposal must include:

- Rationale. An overview of the coverage of our next issue, highlighting the key areas and issues to be addressed.
- Indicative contents. Titles, authors and abstracts should be provided, including an editorial. Contents should demonstrate an international orientation, including through the range of contributors. If this is not the case, then a rationale should be provided.

Proposals should be submitted via email to ijcpjournal@yahoo.com.

Hope this new experience brings a fresh air to Iranian Journal of Cancer Prevention as a special team work.

Mohammad E. Akbari
Professor of Surgical Oncology
Chairman & Editor in Chief